

THE EMBASSY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
Announces the Annual Competition for Fulbright & Humphrey Exchange Programs from December 1, 2021 to January 31, 2022

More Information and Application Forms: <https://bf.usembassy.gov/>

1. Fulbright Visiting Student (FVS)

For students and professionals who would like to pursue a master's degree or PhD in the United States (1-2 year grants). Candidates must have a high level of English – enough to successfully pursue full-time graduate-level study in the United States (i.e., a TOEFL score of at least 575).

2. Fulbright Visiting Student – Long Term English (FVS-LTE)

This program is similar to the Fulbright Visiting Students Program discussed in item 1, except candidates can have English language training in the United States for up to eight months before their master's degree program. The program is only available to candidates seeking a master's degree and must have a TOEFL score of at least 550.

3. Fulbright African Research Scholar Program (ARSP)

This program is intended for university faculty members or individuals working at independent research centers, museums, or other cultural institutions that have educational and research objectives. This program allows selected applicants to go to the United States to conduct research for three-to-nine months during the academic year. There is also a special program for persons who desire to do AIDS-related research or professional development in the United States. The disciplines eligible for the special AIDS program include Sociology and social work, anthropology, education, economics, law, public administration, communications, art, theater, medical sciences, biological sciences, and psychology. A good command of English is essential, but no minimum TOEFL score is required.

4. Hubert H. Humphrey Fellowship Program

For mid-level professionals who are moving up into leadership positions in the public or private sector. This program offers an opportunity to develop one's leadership skills and learn the latest in their field. Fellows spend approximately nine months in the United States taking graduate-level courses at a U.S. university, participating in long-term leadership development programs and engaging with professional peers from around the world in non-academic professional development activities. This is not an academic degree program. The goal is general professional development. Candidates must already have an undergraduate university degree, at least five years of professional experience, and be proficient in English (TOEFL score of at least 550).

5. Fulbright Teaching Excellence and Achievement Program This Program brings international teachers to the United States for a six-week program to take academic seminars for professional development at a host university and to observe and share their expertise with teachers and students at the host university and at local primary and secondary schools. Applicants must be current secondary-level, full-time teachers of English, English as a Foreign Language (EFL), math, science, or social studies including special education teachers in those subjects at institutions serving primarily a local population. Applicants must hold at least a bachelor's degree or the equivalent and have completed at least five years of full-time teaching by the start of the program. Applicants should be able to demonstrate English language proficiency by attaining a minimum score of 450 on the TOEFL.

- Applicants must be citizens or permanent residents of Burkina Faso.
- Application forms must be completed and returned to the American Embassy (Service entrance) by January 31, 2022.
